

December 2022

As many of you will know, I have decided that it is time for me to step back from clinical General Practice, and I will be finishing work in the week before Christmas this year.

Although it is almost 40 years, it doesn't seem very long ago that I started working with Dr Keith Buckley, who then retired and left me in charge, complete with my infant son who slept under the examination couch.

Thank you for entrusting me with your health care. It has been a privilege and honour to be your GP and a small part of your lives, as you have been a part of mine. Along with your health care we have shared a lot of laughs, and at times tears, and you have taught me more than you will ever know.

There is absolutely no doubt that I will miss doing what I have enjoyed for all this time, however I am confident that you will be in very good hands with Dr Victoria Taylor and the whole team at Dunedin North Medical Centre.

I wish you good health and all the best for the future,

Dr Sandy Webb

"Hello, and to those of you I haven't met yet, I look forward to meeting you. I have big shoes to fill following in Sandy's footsteps as I know she has looked after many of you for a long time, in some cases having delivered you or your children! Change can be unsettling, but I promise you it is a great privilege for me to continue your care.

A little about me? I was born in Dunedin and graduated from Otago Medical School in 2009. I worked in Wellington and Auckland before returning to Dunedin after having a child, and not wanting to leave again! I have worked in the hospital and general practice in Dunedin, and my family has grown so my husband and I now have three children. I am excited to be able to put down permanent roots at a practice, as I really value getting to know people long-term and the better care that this continuity enables.

I have a special interest in women's health and spent several years working in obstetrics and gynaecology. I am also a senior lecturer for University of Otago on women's health. However, I enjoy all aspects of general practice and appreciate the privilege of working with people of all ages, genders, and backgrounds. Outside of work I enjoy reading and writing, gardening and time with my family and friends."
